

GEO v4 On The Horizon

The Internet (2006-07-30)

General Education Online (GEO) announced today continued development on the v4 portal for findaschool.org, which continues the process of expanding General Education Online's current online offerings.

GEO v4, in development for the last year, represents a major commitment to continuing to provide an open resource to educators, students, and researchers. Although a production release date is not set in stone yet, plans are to debut GEO v4 on the research and development website during Quarter 4, 2006.

GEO v4 will include many new features, including the ability to search, profiles for the educational facilities on the list, and revisions to the administration side.